KINE SCUBA Diving Program

The Department of Kinesiology offers a series of four courses that can take you from entry level SCUBA Diver through SCUBA Instructor.

KINE 2278 (Basic SCUBA Diving)
In KINE 2278 you will learn the basics of SCUBA Diving. During two classroom and two pool hours per week, you will develop proficiency with the equipment, skills, and science that will allow you to participate safely in the sport of SCUBA Diving. At the end of each semester, qualified students participate in a series of five open water dives after which they are eligible to receive SCUBA Diver Certification.

KINE Key Largo Event
At the end of each semester, Instructors from KINE take qualified students on a four-day dive trip to Key Largo Florida. Students have the opportunity to participate in a series of seven dives and earn an Advanced SCUBA Diver Certification. The Advanced SCUBA Diver Certification is required to proceed to KINE 5278, and this is one opportunity to satisfy the requirement. Any who wish to participate are welcome.

KINE 5278 (Advanced SCUBA Diving)
KINE 5278 is the second class in our series. This class will broaden your knowledge of diving equipment, and techniques, as well as provide a more in-depth study of diving science and physiology. Class is composed of two classroom hours, and two pool hours per week, and there is a minimum of ten open water dives. At the end of the semester, students completing all requirements will receive the certifications of Master Diver, SCUBA Rescue Diver, First Aid, CPR, and Oxygen Administration.

KINE 3278 (SCUBA Diving Leadership Program)
KINE 3278 is the third class in our series and is the first leadership course. As well as continuing to study diving science, equipment, and technique, students gain experience in diving leadership roles and begin their study of subjects particularly related to leading other divers in diving activities. Class is composed of two classroom hours, and two pool hours per week, and there is a minimum of ten open water dives. At the end of the semester, students completing all requirements will receive the certification of Divemaster.

KINE 4278 (SCUBA Instructor Training Program)
KINE 4278 is the fourth and final class in this series. This course prepares students to teach others to participate safely in the sport of SCUBA Diving through further study of diving science, equipment, and technique as well as providing opportunities to work with Basic SCUBA students under the supervision of an Instructor Trainer. Class is composed of two classroom hours, and two pool hours per week, and there is a minimum of eight open water dives. At the end of the semester, students completing all requirements will receive the certification of NAUI SCUBA Instructor.
